A GIGANTIC MACMINE. to Designed for Turning He

A very remarkable piece of me ery, the product of a Philadelphia firm, the Philadelphia Roll and Machine Company, in Resigned for turning heavy granite columns at the quarties of the Bodweil Granite Company, Vinsalhaven, Me. It was designed and patented by E. B. Cheney and H. A. Spiller of Boston, and is the only lathe of its size scapted to turning granite in practical use.

This machine was primarily conceived and constructed for the special work of turning up and polishing the granite columns to be used in the erection of the cathedral of St. John the Devine in New York City, which will have 32 gramite columns, 54 feet long by 6 feet in diameter, and weigh ing, when complete, about 160 tons each. Innumerable columns of some be used in the construction, for the turning of which this fathe will be length and weight, complete, 135 tons, swings 6 feet 6 inches by 60 feet long, and has eight cutters, each tool tak-ing a out three inches in depth, the whole eight reducing the column 24 inches in diameter at one pass over the length of the stone.

The piece of gramite to be turned is cut square from the quarry, one be ing 67 feet long, 81/2 feet by 7 feet in sections, and weighs 310 tons. After dressing off the corners, which is roughly done by hand, the stone is placed on the lathe, and a period of bout six weeks is then required to dress and polish a column such as the one mentioned.

The bed of the lathe is made up o

six pieces, three on a side, each piece being 21 feet 6 inches long, making the main part of the bed 64 feet 6 inches in length. The whole is bolted together by 12 stay bolds, 2 inches in diameter. The head and tail stocks the convict on extensions to bed, each to fret 0 inches in length, giving the machine a total length of St The head and tail stocks are of mon, weighing 15 and 14 tons, clively, and are bolted down to the theory and onlehors.
